PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS an explanatory article to be added to the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, made between the United States of America and his Britannic Majesty, was concluded and signed at Philadelphia, on the twenty-fourth day of May last, by Timothy Pickering, Esq; Secretary of State on the part of the United States, and by Phineas Bond, Esq; the Commissioner of his Britannic Majesty, which explanatory article is in the words following:

"EXPLANATORY ARTICLE.

"Whereas by the third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, concluded at London on the nineteenth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four, between his Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, it was agreed, that it should at all times be free to his Majesty's subjects and to the citizens of the United States, and also to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line assigned by the treaty of peace to the United States, freely to pass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the two contracting parties, on the continent of America (the country within the limits of the Hudson's Bay company only excepted) and to navigate all the lakes, rivers and waters thereof, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other, subject to the provisions and limitations contained in the said article: And whereas by the eighth article of the treaty of peace and friendship concluded at Greenville on the third day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-five, between the United States and the nations or tribes of Indians called the Wyandots, Delawares, Shawanese, Ottawas, Chippewas, Pottawatamas, Miamis, Eel River, Weeas, Kickapoos, Piankashaws, and Kickapoos, it was stipulated, that no person should be permitted to reside at any of the towns or hunting camps of the said Indians as a trader who is not furnished with a licence for that purpose, under the authority of the United States: which latter stipulation has excited doubts, whether in its operation it may not interfere with the due execution of the said third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation: and it being the sincere desire of his Britannic Majesty and of the United States, that the point should be so explained as to remove all doubts, and promote mutual satisfaction and friendship: And for this purpose his Britannic Majesty having named for his commissioner, Phineas Bond, Esq; his Majesty's Consul General for the middle and southern states of America (and now his Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires to the United States) and the President of the United States, having named for their Commissioner Timothy Pickering, Esq; Secretary of State, of the United States, to whom agreeable to the laws of the United States he has entrusted this negociation: They the said commissioners, having communicated to each other their full powers, have in virtue of the same, and conformably to the spirit of the last article of the said treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, entered into the explanatory article, and do by these presents explicitly agree and declare, that no stipulations in any treaty subsequently concluded by either of the contracting parties with any other state or nation, or with any Indian tribe, can be understood to derogate in any manner from the rights of free intercourse and commerce secured by the aforesaid third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, to the subjects of his Majesty, and to the citizens of the United States, and to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line aforesaid; but that all the said persons shall remain at full liberty freely to pass and repass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the contracting parties, on either side of the said boundary line, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other, according to the stipulations of the said third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation.

"This explanatory article, when the same shall have been ratified by his Majesty and the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of their Senate, and the respective ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be added to and make a part of the said treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, and shall be permanently binding upon his Majesty and the United States.

In witness whereof the said Commissioners of his Majesty the King of Great-Britain, and the United States of America, have signed this present explanatory article, and thereto affixed our seal. Done at Philadelphia this fourth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six.

And whereas the said explanatory article has by me, by and with the advice of the Senate of the United States on the one part, and by his Britannic Majesty on the other, been duly approved and ratified, and the ratifications have since, to wit, on the sixth day of October last been duly exchanged. Now therefore, to the end that the said explanatory article may be executed and observed with punctuality and the most sincere regard to good faith, on the part of the United States, I hereby make known the premises, and enjoin and require all persons bearing office civil or military within the United States, and all other citizens or inhabitants thereof, or being within the same, to execute and observe the said explanatory article accordingly.

In testimony whereof, I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed to these presents, and signed the same with my hand. Given at the City L. S. of Philadelphia, the fourth of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, and the Independence of the United States of America the twenty-first.

G. WASHINGTON.

By the President,
TIMOTHY PICKERING, Secry of State.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

Mr. BROWN,

Please to give the following extract of a letter dated Nov. 16th, from a Physician in New-York to his friend in this city, a place in your paper. It will serve to console the friends of humanity, to observe that while human ingenuity is tortured in discovering the means of destroying the lives of men in other parts of the world, it is employed in discovering the means of preserving them in the United States.

"Sometime in the summer, there was an alarm at Boston, that a pestilential fever had broken out in the town. Several of their physicians, who are opposed to the doctrine of local fever, took much pains to deceive themselves and the public. The select men like the, health Committee of Philadelphia, caused a certificate to be made out, that there was no yellow fever—that those cases which had happened were of a putrid nature, and that the disease was imported. The physicians generally were called upon to sign this paper—which they did.—Among others, Dr. Ruffin, with this limitation, that he had seen no yellow fever. The same, or the next day, he was called upon by Dr. Warren, to visit his patients.—Here he immediately discovered the yellow fever, and the local origin of it. He converted Dr. Warren to his opinion, and they represented the matter to the magistracy who caused all the well to be removed—had the whole of that part of the town cleansed throughly—the depleting system, instead of bark, wine, &c. was put in practice—and the mortality and the disease were arrested in their progress. While this was doing in Boston, the unhappy people of Newburyport, were dying as fast as they fell sick, by a disease of the same kind, which had originated from a large mass of putrid fish, and which was treated on the stimulating plan. The death of Dr. Sweat, one of the most able doctors in New-England, struck a deep terror into the breasts of all. One of the ablest physicians of the place was despatched to Boston, with a history of the disease, &c. to consult with the faculty there on what was to be done. In this consultation Dr. Ruffin and some others, insisted on the free use of the lancet and cathartics, as the principal remedies. Dr. Coffin returned, practised the new practice, and with unexampled success. Facts of this kind ought to be widely diffused. They must eventually open the eyes of the people; and they will learn to whom they are indebted for having rescued them from a disease scarcely less ferocious than the Plague."

On the day of the fete of the 1st Vendemiaire the Five Directors, surrounded by the Ministers and Ambassadors, went in the evening into a balcony to see the illuminations and fire-works in the Champ de Mars. "I do not wish to make myself greater than I am." The reply was much applauded.

At the public audience of the Directory this day, the minister of war presented Citizen Marmont, the aid de camp of Buonaparte, who was the bearer of 22 stands of colours taken from the enemy, from the 2d to the 15th September, in the battles of Serravalle, Lavis, in the defiles along the river Brenta, &c.

From the 1st Aug. to the 20th Sept. the army of Italy has destroyed two Austrian armies, made forty six thousand prisoners, among these six thousand horsemen; took two hundred and eighty pieces of field artillery, six hundred ammunition waggons, and eight hundred sixty seven store waggons, with the requisition horse; three complete sets of pontoons, each consisting of thirty two copper vessels; immense magazines of provisions at Trente, Bolzano, and Bassano; forty-nine stands of colours.

The President of the Directory gave the fraternal embrace to citizen Marmont, and made him a present of a superb pair of pistols.

A young French emigrant is at present in the custody of the police, by order of the Duke of Portland, for having entered into a specific agreement with the Spanish Ambassador, to raise 15,000 men upon the continent only for the service of that country. He was seized at 4 o'clock in the morning, and the papers were found sewed up in the matrass of his bed. He was formerly upon the half pay of the reduced emigrant corps, but had the precaution to throw it up, previous to the stipulation in question.

LONDON, October 11.

His Majesty's new sloop Arrow, is built on a new construction, with four rising keels; she is to mount twenty-eight 32 pounders, and is to be commanded by Capt. Portlock; she will not carry any ballast, and will, when fitted, and four months stores on board, draw only ten feet water; her guns are not to go on carriages, but are to be mounted on a screw, from a flock fastened to the deck, by which means the guns will only be turned round as a swivel, instead of running in and out for loading.

Lord Cornwallis is erecting four batteries on Gladiou Beach, to command the entrance of the Maldon river in Essex; and the Gentlemen of that county, at their Quarter Sessions, on Wednesday last, directed a volunteer company, consisting of 200 yeomanry, to be immediately raised and trained for working the guns of said batteries, at the request of Lord Howard de Walden, the Lord-Lieutenant of said county.

About seventy privates and five officers of the 29th regiment, marched into Pool on Monday from Gosport, where they landed last Thursday, from one of the transports from Grenada. These poor fellows are the remains of the whole regiment, and who went out of this kingdom 900 strong.

The documents collected at Vendome, for the trial of the accomplices of Drouet, amount to 60 o. There are 42 persons to be tried. Each document is to be copied two and forty times, because the penal code expressly says, that each of the accused shall, after the usual interrogatories receive a copy of each proceeding. Thus there must be 2520 copies in all, which, allowing one half hour for each, will take 1260 hours. A clerk employed ten hours a day will furnish 20 copies, and the 20 clerks attached to the High Court of Justice can furnish only 400 in the course of a day. Thus all the copies will take up more than a year to be completed. We may consequently form an idea of the long delay to which the proceedings of the Court must necessarily be subject.

NEW YORK, December 9.

Extract of a letter received this morning from Trenton, dated 8th inst

"The Electors of New-Jersey are unanimous—seven for John Adams and Thomas Pinckney."

DREADFUL CONFLAGRATION.

About one o'clock this morning, a fire broke out in one of the stores on Murray's wharf, Coffee-house slip, and raged with such fury as to baffle all human exertion, 'till it had laid in ashes the whole block of buildings included between the slip, Front-street and the Fly market. The number of buildings consumed may be from 50 to 70, consisting mostly of large warehouses, with some large and valuable dwelling houses. The goods in the stores first burnt were all consumed, with all the books and papers of the occupiers. Of this number are Messieurs Robinson and Harthorn, Miss Loomis and Tillinghast, Wm. and S. Robinson, and the representatives of Nicholas Cook.

The merchandise in the stores nearer to the Fly market was much of it saved.

Fortunately it was high water, and the wind off shore, by which means the shipping was all saved.

The principal proprietors of the buildings burnt are Stewart and Jones, John Murray jun. John Mutton, Robert Bowne, John Taylor, Carey Ludlow, Robert and Peter Bruce and Henry H. Kip.

Other sufferers are Rankin and Hartshorne, Loomis and Tillinghast, estate of Nicholas Cook, David Wagstaff, Benjamin Strong, John Rathbone, Isaac Riles, David G. Hubbard, D. Bethune & Co. Scheiwhauler & Co. Many others who had property stored in the warehouses, have suffered greatly, but we cannot ascertain their names.

The progress of the fire was finally arrested by cutting down the Fish market.

It would be imprudent at present to hazard a guess at the amount of property destroyed. It must be immense.

The warehouses were all of wood, and many of them contained large quantities of rum and spirits, which rendered the flames terrible in rapidity and extent.

WITCHCRAFT.

The Courts of Common Pleas and General Sessions of the Peace for the county of York, were holden at Biddeford last week. At this Court an action was commenced on behalf of the Commonwealth against Elizabeth Smith, and others, for an assault and battery on Elizabeth Smith, widow. In the course of the trial it appeared, that in the month of October last, the Complainant had been accused of Witchcraft; and that not only her neighbours, but her relations had been so incensed against her, that she was obliged to flee to a neighbouring town for safety. It seems that one John Hilton had, some time in October, become insane; and, while in that state, accused the Complainant of having bewitched him. He said, that as he was going home one evening, just before dark, the Complainant appeared before him, and walked some time at about six yards distance; that he had an ox goad in his hand, which he held by the middle; that presently he perceived the goad to move through his hand; that when it had passed almost out of his hand, being persuaded that it was the Complainant who was drawing it out, and that she did it by the power of Witchcraft, he attempted to strike her; but instead of doing any injury to the Complainant, he himself received a violent blow on the lower part of the back; that the blow gave him great pain, &c. Eaton Cleaves, witness on behalf of the defendants, further testified, that till the time mentioned by Hilton, he had been perfected of a sound mind; that he then declared the Complainant had bewitched him, and had ever since continued to declare it. That the Complainant had been requested to visit Hilton; and that while she was in the house he appeared to be much better, and talked very rationally; that it was proposed to obtain some of her blood as an antidote; and that she consented her blood should be shed. But notwithstanding all this, it appeared in evidence, that the defendants had threatened her life, had said she ought to have been long ago in hell with the damned; and that they would let loose the man whom she had bewitched, John Hilton, to kill her. Whether they let him loose or not is uncertain; but it is a fact, that he made his escape from the place where he was confined, and ran immediately to the house of the Complainant; beat her violently with a stick, drove her out of the house, then seized her by the throat, and well nigh choaked her. While Hilton was striking and choaking her, one of the defendants, and voice to Hilton, cried out, "kill her, uncle John." It appeared also, in the course

…REAS an explanatory article to be added to the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, …ween the United States of America and his Britannic Majesty, was concluded and signed at Philadelphia, on the …th day of May last, by Timothy Pickering, Esq; Secretary of State on the part of the United States, and by Phineas Bond, Esq; the Commissioner of his Britannic Majesty, which explanatory article is in the words following:

"Whereas by the third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, concluded at London on the nineteenth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four, between his Britannic Majesty and the United States of America, it was agreed, that it should at all times be free to his Majesty's subjects and to the citizens of the United States, and also to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line assigned by the treaty of peace to the United States, freely to pass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the two contracting parties, on the continent of America (the country within the limits of the Hudson's Bay company only excepted) and to navigate all the lakes, rivers and waters thereof, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other, subject to the provisions and limitations contained in the said article: And whereas by the eighth article of the treaty of peace and friendship concluded at Greenville on the third day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-five, between the United States and the nations or tribes of Indians called the Wyandots, Delawares, Shawanese, Ottawas, Chippewas, Pattawatamas, Miamis, Eel River, Weeas, Kickapoos, Piankashaws, and Kaskaskias, it was stipulated, that no person should be permitted to reside at any of the towns or hunting camps of the said Indian tribes as a trader who is not furnished with a licence for that purpose, under the authority of the United States: which latter stipulation has excited doubts, whether in its operation it may not interfere with the due execution of the said third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation: and it being the sincere desire of his Britannic Majesty and of the United States, that the point should be so explained as to remove all doubts, and promote mutual satisfaction and friendship: And for this purpose his Britannic Majesty having named for his commissioner, Phineas Bond, Esq; his Majesty's Consul General for the middle and southern states of America (and now his Majesty's Charge d'Affairs to the United States) and the President of the United States, having named for their Commissioner Timothy Pickering, Esq; Secretary of State, of the United States, to whom agreeable to the laws of the United States he has entrusted this negociation: They the said commissioners, having communicated to each other their full powers, have in virtue of the same, and conformably to the spirit of the last article of the said treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, entered into the explanatory article, and do by these presents explicitly agree and declare, that no stipulations in any treaty subsequently concluded by either of the contracting parties with any other state or nation, or with any Indian tribe, can be understood to derogate in any manner from the rights of free intercourse and commerce secured by the aforesaid third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, to the subjects of his Majesty, and to the citizens of the United States, and to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line aforesaid; but that all the said persons shall remain at full liberty freely to pass and repass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the contracting parties, on either side of the said boundary line, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other, according to the stipulations of the said third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation.

"This explanatory article, when the same shall have been ratified by his Majesty and the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of their Senate, and the respective ratifications mutually exchanged, shall be added to and make a part of the said treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, and shall be permanently binding upon his Majesty and the United States.

In witness whereof the said Commissioners of his Majesty the King of Great-Britain, and the United States of America, have signed this present explanatory article, and thereto affixed our seal. Done at Philadelphia this fourth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six.

And whereas the said explanatory article has by me, by and with the advice of the Senate of the United States on the one part, and by his Britannic Majesty on the other, been duly approved and ratified, and the ratifications have since, to wit, on the sixth day of October last been duly exchanged. Now therefore, to the end that the said explanatory article may be executed and observed with punctuality and the most sincere regard to good faith, on the part of the United States, I hereby make known the premises; and enjoin and require all persons bearing office civil or military within the United States, and all other citizens or inhabitants thereof, or being within the same, to execute and observe the said explanatory article accordingly.

In testimony whereof, I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed to these presents, and signed the same with my hand. Given at the City of Philadelphia, the fourth of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, and the Independence of the United States of America the twenty-first.

G. WASHINGTON.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

Mr. BROWN,

Please to give the following extract of a letter dated Nov. 16th, from a Physician in New-York to his friend in this city, a place in your paper. It will serve to console the friends of humanity, to observe that while human ingenuity is tortured in discovering the means of destroying the lives of men in other parts of the world, it is employed in discovering the means of preserving them in the United States.

"Sometime in the Summer, there was an alarm at Boston, that a pestilential fever had broken out in the town. Several of their physicians, who are opposed to the doctrine of local fever, took much pains to deceive themselves and the public. The select men like the, health Committee of Philadelphia, caused a certificate to be made out, that there was no yellow fever—that those causes which had happened were of a putrid nature, and that the disease was imported. The physicians generally were called upon to sign this paper—which they did.—Among others, Dr. Eustis, with this limitation, that he had seen no yellow fever. The same, or the next day, he was called upon by Dr. Warren, to visit his patients.—Here he immediately discovered the yellow fever, and the local origin of it. He converted Dr. Warren to his opinion, and they represented the matter to the magistracy who caused all the swill to be removed—had the whole of that part of the town cleansed throughly—the depleting system, instead of bark, wine, &c. was put in practice—and the mortality and the disease were arrested in their progress. While this was doing in Boston, the unhappy people of Newburyport, were dying as fast as they fell sick, by a disease of the same kind, which had originated from a large mass of putrid fish, and which was treated on the stimulating plan. The death of Dr. Sweat, one of the most able doctors in New-England, struck a deep terror into the breasts of all. One of the ablest physicians of the place was despatched to Boston, with a history of the disease, &c. to consult with the faculty there on what was to be done. In this consultation Dr. Eustis and some others, insisted on the free use of the lancet and cathartics, as the principal remedies. Dr. Coffin returned, pursued the new practice, and with unexampled success. Facts of this kind ought to be widely diffused. They must eventually open the eyes of the people; and they will learn to whom they are indebted for having rescued them from a disease scarcely less ferocious than the Plague."

An evil, which admits no cure;
O how this evil may be borne,
Which breeds, at once, both hate and scorn.—
Bare innocence is no support,
When you are try'd in Scandal's court;
Stand high in honour, wealth, or wit,
All others, who inferior sit,
